Lucky 13: Thirteen Teams Pile on the Points—having scored at least 500 Points

Shippensburg, a NCAA II team, has scored a team all-time high of 595 points and is currently the highest scoring team in 2012; one of six first-time teams to surpass the 500+ point plateau in a single-season.

The first touchdown the school scores in the second round of the NCAA II playoffs will push the school inside a select group of (96 to be exact) of ones that have tallied 600-837 points.

Another newcomer and perennial high-scoring team, Southern Oregon and Mount Union currently rank as the 113th highest scoring team in college football stathistory/500+Rankings.

These two teams have put 589 points on the scoreboards as well as playing in the same number of games, 12.

Louisiana Tech, with its season finale to be played this coming Saturday, round out the 2012 teams in the Top 150 all time (circa 1885...Princeton, [645 645 points during a 9-0 season.]])

Though it's unlikely, that LT would fail to score this weekend, it will remain tied with 3 other schools—and it would be the third year-in-a-row that a team has scored 575 points. (Teams: 1949-College of Pacific; 2010-Oklahoma State and 2011- Boise State.) LT's could also extend its tally if it receives a bowl bid.

- ❖ Now that the playoffs are in full swing; here's a Top 10 of post season points the most and least—by a 500+ team—per number of games played.
